Our club:

Our community at University Of Jordan, is a formally organized programming club, where members share interests in the field of computer science, computer engineering, problem solving contest. We started the chapter last year. The chapter consists of around 40 members and we aim to increase this number as we increase our activities and the type of students they attract.

Mission:

Our aim is to give each member the skills they need in their fields and the chance of making communications to make them get the best jobs offered.

Structure:

The leadership will consist of a president and vice president basically, and new roles will be given to members as needed like treasurer, activity leader and others. The main leadership of the club will be chosen by electing, this will insure that the club will be working towards the majority of members. The handover to new leaders will consist of a meeting where old leaders will explain the vision, activities and essential things new leaders should know, also it consists of giving them the guide that we created to insure the long term working of the club and how they can add, edit and delete from it but still keep the main goal of the club exist.

Communication:

We use different platforms to communicate with members like our Facebook page, the email of the club, and the usual meetings of members. We use Facebook because most members have accounts on it and find it easier to communicate using it, the email of the club is the formal way that we use for announcements and relevant uses. (the email and the link of the group are on the club website) .
